Dear Minder,

My name is Tiago and I graduated from my Bachelor's Degree in Informatics Engineering last year. Currently, I'm taking my Master's Degree in Software Engineering at ISEP, partial regime.

You just opened a new vacancy for an iOS Developer and I just had to apply since I've been waiting for it. Mindera is where I've been wanting to work since I entered the work world. I attended your last Tech Day in October and you just convinced me once again that Mindera is where I want to aim for.

Your self-management culture is one of the features that makes me interested to work with you the most, since I'm someone who likes to take responsibility for its acts, is able to stay self-motivated and also enjoys motivating others.

As you've seen from my resume, I've recently quit my job as a .NET Developer to pursue an iOS Development career. Not because I was asked to, but because I felt the need to. I wasn't learning anything new nor adding anything to my day. That's one of the features I love the most from what I hear and see about Mindera – I know that I'll never be bored, there will always be a new challenge, and I'll integrate a team where products that make us proud are built. As a tech lover, that's pretty much one of the best things you can ask for. If you have any questions contact me, I'll be waiting for it. :)

Sincerely,
Tiago
